Construction of Short Wave Set

By SUNNY DAY

Although the name of Prof. I. G.
Watkins or of the Electrical Engineering department of the University has not heretofore been mentioned in connection with radio station WPET, Lexington's recently completed short wave police station, nevertheless it was through their efforts that the very latest in short wave radio has been installed in this city.Professor Watkins recommended the equipment to the city manager, and supervised the buying and installation. He asked that his name not be mentioned in connection with the station, and not until the present time has that full information been released. He and Dean Anderson felt that it was merely another aid that the University could render to the city and to the state. The three regular operators of the station are U. of K. men.So modern is this station that last August, at the time installation was begun the kind of equipment desired was not available. Consequently half power was installed with an exciter unit and the final amplifier was later added. The station has been operating with full power only about three weeks.
It is located on the second floor of the Municipal building, Walnut street, and the two one hundred foot towers are located on the lot in the rear of the building.The quality of reception from this station is as good as any broadcast reception. It entirely lacks that mechanical voice effect. The type of microphone used is identical the same as that used in regular broadcasts—namely the condenser 'mike'. The station operated with a 200-watt transmitter and is B modulated 100 percent. It has an acting radius of between 75 and 100 miles in any kind of weather, although it may be picked up at much greater distances. The station may be picked up by any receiving set which has the capacity of bringing in short wave stations. The station broadcasts on a frequency of 17,012 kilocycles.The radio frequency is transmitted from the control room to the tuning house, located between the mended price fixing for farm products as a step toward restoration of prosperity to agriculture.Some early plan of relief is ad-or other radical measures is to be forestalled, Colonel Callahan said.

Farmers must first be assured that their land will not be taken from them by foreclosure, and then a price-fixing plan is advisable. This price should be fixed so as to pay farmers a daily wage plus an ade-congressmen, several college presicollege professors, and a large group of prominent business men.The fraternity is strong financially, maintaining a large endowters to buy chapter houses and which has resulted in about 85 per cent of the chapters owning their own houses.Sigma Phi Epsilon has about 40 alumni organizations which watch closely the finances and activities of the active chapters, thus making the national organizations as com-

IN ATLANTA IN '34Decision Comes As Surprise To Coaches, Who Attempted to Obolish Conference Meets

MET AT ATLANTA A. C.

By NEVILLE DUNN
Herald Sports Editor
(Courtesy Lexington Herald)Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 27—The fathers of the Southeastern conference, the presidents of the 13 institutions making up the South's newest athletic association, decided at their organization meeting here today that the annual basketball tournament after all is a fine thing for the progress of the sport and they voted to hold it again next year.This was surprise number one to the group of coaches who had worked for the abolition of the event. The second surprise was that the Conference heads accepted an invitation from Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia to hold the event in Atlanta again next year. It seemed certain, from talk heard here and there during the present tournament, that if the tourney was held next year, it would be given to the University of Kentucky at Lexington. But for some reason, the University of Kentucky did not ask for the tourney.Asked about this after today's meeting, Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University and president of the Southeastern conference, said that he did not know that there had been any talk about bringing the tournament to Lexington. S. A.
Boles, athletic director at the University of Kentucky, said no one even suggested Kentucky at the meeting today.Prof. Enoch Grehan, chairman of the Athletic council at the University, who attended today's meeting, told a representative of the Lexington Herald at noon today that if it was decided to hold the tournament again, he would invite the tournament to Lexington, but evidently, something occurred to prevent his doing so.So strong was the movement to abolish the tournament, the committee which drew up the Constitution and by-laws of the Southeastern Conference, recommended that the basketball tournament and all other meets except track be eliminated. But before this article was passed on today, a committee of coaches and newspapermen in favor of the basketball tournament appeared before the presidents of the member schools and this entire article was stricken out, meaning that all meets, such as golf, tennis, boxing and so on will be held as usual and that the basketball tournament will be continued.The game with Louisiana State was a thriller from start to finish, both teams had wonderful offenses and the scoring averaged more than two points a minute. The "Cats were led by their all-American Captain "Aggie" Sale who scored 20 points and John "Frenchy" DeMoisey who registered 15 counters.It was little "Sparky" Wade, the cooky Jena, La., lad who provided the big thrills for the L. S. U. supporters. Sparky counted time after time from any angle, and his defensive play was nearly perfect as he held Darrel Darby to a total of one point for the evening. Wade was a former all-American scholastic as a member of the Jena High school team that played in the Chicago a few years ago. During the game last night the crowd took to booing the cocky lad, but nevertheless great little guard played one of the best games in this year's tourney.As the game opened Kentucky jumped into a lead of four points when "Aggie" Sale made two field goals. From here until the finish the Big Blue was never in danger and managed at all time to hold a fair margin of points.The Kentucky team was the favorite with the Atlanta fans during the fray. Evidently the cockyness of "Sparky" Wade turned them against the L. S. U. team. The Big Blue was in its best form of the year with all the five men used by Coach Rupp playing spectacular games, with the exception of Darby who was completely overwhelmed by the play of Wade.Tonight the Blue quintet will meet the tournament darkhorse—Mississippi State. The Mississippi lads entered the meet unknown, but after winning three games they are considered as nearly the equal of the "Cats. The strong Vanderbilt and Alabama organizations, favored by Atlanta critics to win the present tournament, were both conqur-ed by this unknown five. Coach Rupp's lads are favored to win this evening but the game should be a battle royal after the sound trouncing that Mississippi handed Vanderbilt last evening, 48-36.The Summary:

Graduate School office, Dean and Mrs. W. D. Funkhouser are greatly enjoying their trip which will extend around the world, not ending until September 3 of this year when they will arrive in Lexington. In his late letters Dean Funkhouser has made frequent references to the extreme heat he has encountered in the places he has visited. On March 7 the Funkhousers will arrive at Bombay, and on the following day they will sail for Africa.Since it takes at least six weeks for mail addressed to Asiatic and African ports to arrive, mail sent now should be addressed to Marine Hotel, Capetown, Cape Colony, South Africa where Doctor Funkhouser will arrive April 12.A few of the important and interesting places that Doctor and Mrs. Funkhouser have visited on their trip are Havana, Los Angeles, and San Francisco, Honolulu, Tokyo, Kyoto, Nara, Kobe, Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Singapore, Penang, Darjeeling, Calcutta and Agra. The morning of February 22, they left by ricksha with a guide about 3 a. m. and arrived at Tiger Hill resthouse about 5, where they were served coffee. They then watched the sunrise over Mount Everest. The rest of the morning was spent by Doctor Funkhouser collecting in the forest; frequent mention is made in the itinerary of time used in collecting for botanical and zoological purposes.

SELECTIONS OF NEW YORK ART STUDENTS LEAGUE HUNG AT ART CENTER

By MAYRYE CEYE

A varied selection of works from members of the Art Students League of New York, which have been hung for display in the Art center of the University were opened to the public at 8 a. m. Monday, February 27, and will be on display each week day from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m., from February 27 until March the compositions will be given by Prof. Edward Rannells at 7 p. m. on the Tuesday and Thursday nights of each week during the exhibit.Of particular interest in the collection are the works of Kenneth Hayes Miller, painter; Arthur Young, author of lithographs and wood blocks; George Gross, and George Bridgman, draftsmen; and Robert Laurent and William Zorach, sculptors, who have been prominent in art circles in the United States.Of unusual interest are the pencil drawings of George Gross, recognized as one of the outstanding draft-men of today. His works indicate a real feeling for beauty and a charm in handling. The quality of his lines are pleasing and show precision and a beautiful flow. His compositions are arranged in such a manner that taken in sections, each square inch is interesting for the design of the line.Charles Locke, another outstanding draftsman, has sent two lithographs, "The Cigar Store," and "The Gallery," both of which demonstrate his ability to represent forms in three dimensions. His figures are carefully not blocked and a rhythm of line unites the entire compositions.The works of Arthur Young are really worthy of consideration. His wood-block, "Lilies," which was one of the Fifty Prints of the year, and a beautiful decorative bit of work, is among the collection.The three compositions by William C. McNulty, although they are done in color, are essentially the work of a draftsman. The one entitled "Circus," is held togetherprincipally by the application of red color throughout the picture. His work is characterized by a wealth of detail, and frequently the subject matter is amusing.Anne Goldthwaite sent two compositions, which, although they do not represent her best work, indicate a knowledge of painting. The "Head," although it gives the impression of having been left unfinished, is the type of work which only a skilled artist could produce.Kenneth Hayes Miller, one of the important painters, shows a cleverness in combining high intensities of brilliant colors into a single picture, "The Dress Shop." While the subject matter is not so interesting, the composition is well done. His other canvas, "By the Window," while it is not so resplendent with a variety of color, has more richness.Frank Vincent DuMont's "The Boy Scout" is an excellent example of the style used in fashionable portrait painting, although, of course, the subject is unusual.Walter Pach's representation is of a portrait which is rather drab in color, but which indicates that the artist has a knowledge of the use of his medium. Walter Pach is noted in art circles for his writings on modern art.Ivan Olinsky's two portraits, "Warren Rogers" and "Head of Young Girl," are excellent for their photographic attention to detail.Luigi Lucioni, an American of Italian extraction, has sent a single composition, "Yellow Tabelecloth," which is done in the manner of the "primitives" of the fifteenth century. His picture is interesting for the beauty of the local color, meaning that all the color shapes are well-defined patches of bright colors, pleasingly arranged, and without a single all over color predomi-nating.Eugene Fitch, apparently, has been too absorbed in a wealth of subject matter. His pictures are interesting because they are different, but they seem to lack unity. His compositions are "The Electrician," and "14th St. Night."

John Stewart Curry's works have the well-defined lines of black and white drawings, even though they are done in color. The foreshortening to produce an illusion of depth is effective especially in the picture, "The Man Hunt."Of particular charm in the combination of reds and browns, is "Girl with Violin," by H. E. Schnakenberg.Richard Lahey's "Carlotia," a portrait, is basically a line drawing, but is interesting in its subject matter and enhanced by the surety of the artist in handling his medium.Of departmental interest are the two bits of sculpturing which are in the collection, "Wooden Torso," by Robert Laurent; and "Kiddle Car" by William Zorach, both of whom are well-known sculptors.
Both works are done in wood. The "Wooden Torso" is polished to smooth and satiny finish which enhances the effectiveness of the lines of this bit of art.

STOUT FELLOWS

Frank C. Lane, nationally known basketball official, has named Ellis Johnson, Kentucky athlete, as a guard on the first team of his all-American selections. Forest "Aggie" Sale, Wildcat captain this year and an all-American forward last season, was named on the second team, and John "Frenchy" DeMolsey, forward, given honorable mention.

That three of Kentucky's outstanding basketball stars are included in the selections of this referee, who has officiated at games throughout the nation and has seen the best quintets in America in action, is a tribute to these men, Coach Adolph Rupp, and to the University.

ON COURTESY

Kentucky—mirror of courtesy and home of hospitality! How often have we seen that typical expression of our commonwealth printed in books or expressed by transients. Courtesy and hospitality are children of good breeding, and the latter may be either of true or foster parentage. A college education supposedly cultivates good breeding.

At general convocation, last Friday, an eminent visitor was the guest of the University. Not quite through when the bell sounded for fourth hour class, he continued his utterance. Students walked out. The distinguished visitor arose to the occasion. He returned the convocation to the hands of President McVey. While the president was talking, students continued to scuffle out.

There are times when one questions: Kentucky—mirror of courtesy and home of hospitality.

PARKING ULTIMATUM

Indifference to parking regulations on the campus has been brought to the student body's immediate attention through the recent activity of the Men's Student council which issued a warning to students who ignore parking rules in the future.

During the entire school year, some students driving cars to classes have disobeyed parking rules and have ignored admonitions of the administration. No punishment has been meted out to these guilty persons. If the action of the Council is effective, these offenders will be liable to reprimand, suspension, or expulsion as the Council, with the approval of the Senate, deems wise.

Certainly, some action was necessary under the circumstances because of the constant violation of parking regulations, causing injury to campus property and arousing the complaint of University authorities. If the law is enforced, as it should be, punishment of the first offenders will serve as a warning to other students.

Threats and reprimands have proved valueless in the past. Whether more stringent methods will alleviate the conditions will depend upon the activity of the Council.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL REPORT

As was predicted in these columns several days ago the final report of the Athletic Council to President McVey contained no startling information, that is, nothing serious, if the reduction of salaries during these stringent times is to be considered commonplace because of its imperativeness.

The course which the athletic board took on the recommendations of protesting students is a wise one. In avoiding a breach of contract with any of its employees, the Council has acted only as any other judicial body or business concern would have acted under similar circumstances. Likewise did the Athletic Council conduct itself in a business-like manner in reducing the salaries of its coaching and office staffs after considering recommendations by the committee purporting to represent the student body.

No one is desirous of slashing salaries, but, when there is no alternative, it is the only way. Athletics, whether one thinks of it as a business or something that goes along with college life, must be handled with expert skill and sagacious judgment. Where others have had to dismiss employees the Athletic Council has been able, through a cut in its other expenditures, to retain every person on its payroll. On that point, along with others, congratulations are offered the board.

Students can feel only satisfaction with the work which the Council has done in adopting many of the student recommendations and in bringing athletics where it belongs, closer to the undergraduate.

STRENGTH IN UNITY

"In unity there is strength." This proverb applies to the budding organization of the new interfraternity council. The movement to mould together the social groups on the campus is indeed a wise one. The constitution, yet to be adopted officially by the new council, will call for the banding together of the fraternities in a mutual effort to create a better feeling among themselves. It further advocates the support of such campus activities as are really worth-while.

Establishment of the council will allow fraternities the power of governing themselves. Members will have the opportunity of presenting their opinions as to rules and social affairs sponsored by their groups. Delegating the government of the fraternities to the organizations themselves certainly is an intelligent effort toward raising the standard of these units.

At the last meeting of the council, a few changes were made in the original constitution—the most important, the limitation on the powers of the executive board. In compliance with objections of several fraternities that the veto of the executive board should not be final, it was decided that the council might override a veto by the executive board if there were not more than two dissenting votes when the vetoed measure was submitted to the council.

The majority of the fraternities approved the constitution after this change was made. Final agreement is expected to be reached within a few days.

DOTES AND ANTI-DOTES

By LAWRENCE HERRON

Since the publication of her waggish revelation of the idiosyncrasies of campus pups, Phatour Editor Judith Chadwick, herself, has acquired a hang-dog look. It seems that in her summary of faculty members' doggies, some were slighted. The lady tells me that now she cannot encounter even a stray pooch, look into its soulful eyes, and notice its sadly wagging tail without feeling guilty. In the meantime, to save her conscience, she plans to write a supplement to her first story.

Among the flashbacks from Judith's first story is the following: My dear Miss Chadwick:

I just want to tell you some more about our dogs. First, Iridia is not the name of a dog but the name of our Kennel. Then, you left out the name of the most important of all of our dogs, the sire, Little Flashaway, who is a regular attendant at the botany classes, especially the field work.

There is another dog on the campus you have forgotten—Katherine, who is really our dog but who has elected to spend the remainder of her natural life with Miss Artie Lee Taylor of the Library. Katherine has the distinction of being the oldest dog on the campus; for she is nearly "sweet sixteen."

Will you please see that our dog friends know this?

Sincerely,
(Signed:) JOHN McFARLAND.
P. S.: Katherine can predict the weather. When her rheumatism is worse, we know it is going to rain.

WINTER NIGHT
Snowflakes that fall as softly as light, Trees standing mute and bare;
A white blanket thrown over the face of night,
And hiding the ugliness that is there.
Nothing but silence and peace seems here; Nothing but the virginal white; Winter's true self rules supreme here,
The master of another winter night.

THY LOWLY BROTHER
He dwells not in the streets of fame, A forgotten by-path he calls his home.
The wine of life for him is thin.
And Bitterness makes him her own.

His portion's small of this world's things, But of his sorrows he can share, He labors hard, but does not know, That hope eternal that lightens care.

Because for him the gates of life Have opened not, don't pass him by!

Sincerely,

(Signed:) JOHN McFARLAND.

Think that but for some lucky thrust, That lowly there might have been "I."

Do not despise him and his fate, If chance leads him through lowly things.
His portion's not what your's has been.
For him no joyous heart-bells ring.
So give to him a helping hand, Extend to him a friendship line;
Remember that within his breast, There dwells a heart and soul divine.

WHAT HAVE I DONE?
What have I done, Buddy?
Please set my fears at end, Once they called us friends, Now—only a brief smile Flies from your kind lips
When we pass each other on our way

If friendship's ended Then so must it be.
But at least—my heart cries, Why? Won't you answer?
'Tis in your power—you have said,
"Nothing."

And you yourself have been The one to speak of honesty, I did my best and if I failed, Then the only blame is mine; Failure in itself breaks hearts, But even souls are shriveled By the touch of doubt,
What have I done, Buddy

And Now, My Dear, It's the Kat

Kampus Kat, Dolled Up in Newest of Spring Outfits, To Make Early Appearance

By JUDITH CHADWICK

Despite the fact that nearly every professor, and dean, and even the president is the proud possessor of a dog, there is one KAT that defies all canine hostilities...not only canine...it defies everything and everybody excepting the advertisers...unfortunately the very fearlessness of this dauntless creature forces him to be very wary as to just how and when he approaches the Kampus. In fact, after his last appearance it was very doubtful as to whether he would come around again.

Rumor has it that the Kampus Kat is about to come forth in a flashy spring coat of four colors...the editors flatly deny that they know anything about it...as usual...they are just beginning earlier this time on account of they won't have so much to deny after it makes its appearance.

The most peculiar thing about the Kampus Kat is that although it is bolder with each arrival, its visits become fewer and farther apart...but it last appearance received such a negative reception from the faculty that when the request was received that a mere kitten be allowed to purr a little of the Kampus dirt, it was drowned by the relentless hand of Dean Blanding, before it even had its eyes open.

There is a lot to be said for each arrival of the Kat...it is not until the last capers are cut that one appreciates how gentle...etc.

A'ROAMIN' THE RIALTO

By JOAN CARIGAN

John Barrymore gives his version of the absent-minded professor in the title role of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Topaze" which opens Wednesday at the Strand. Professor Topaze is shown as a kindly old pedant who knows little of the ways of the world, having spent his life in studious pursuits. Like the redoubtable little Red Riding-hood adventure with the wolf, he is lured into a trap with wonderful gullibility, but at last proves to his tempters that he is not quite so dumb as they had supposed him. In Barrymore's masterful hands Professor Topaze becomes a lovely human. Myrna Loy heads a notable supporting cast.

"Dangerously Yours," with Warner Baxter and Miriam Jordan, finishes its engagement at the Kentucky theater today. Wynne Gibson and Jean Hersholt head an all-star cast in "The Crime of the Century," which starts its run in Lexington tomorrow. "The Crime of the Century," is said to be taken from a popular detective mystery. It deals with a timely subject in criminology.

The Ben All theater presents Leo Carrillo on its screen Thursday in the Columbia picture, "Obey the Law." The story has to do with the problem of unscrupulous individuals who take advantage of bewildered immigrants just being introduced to this new country. Lois Wilson and Dickie Moore are included in the cast. Benjamin Stollhoff directed.

Ted Cook in The Louisville Times writes that the results of prohibition are staggering. Well, Ted, I'd say the results just about lay a person out.

ALL IS WELL
What'er you dream, with doubt possessed, Keep, keep it snug within your breast,
And lay you down and take your rest.
Forget in sleep the doubt and pain,
And, when you awake, to work again.
The wind it blows, the vessel goes,
And where and whither, no one knows.

I will all be well, no need of care; Though how it will, and when, and where,
We cannot see, and can't declare.
In spite of dreams, in spite of thought,
'Tis not in vain, and not for naught.
The wind it blows, the ship it goes, Though where and whither, no one knows.

—Arthur Hugh Clough, 1819-1861.

Casual Observances

It may read as humor, but there is someone besides the bill collectors who have some liking for the Campus Clubbers! That somebody is in the form of the Sigma Beta Xi group, which is scheduled to go the national route in Sigma Phi Epsilon on March 2, 3, and 4. The boys of the Campus Club have been invited to travel that new road with the Sigma Xis! It may be a surprise to most of us, especially the Clubbers. We may expect an almost unanimous induction when the party begins Thursday, March 2.

Mr. V. R. Portmann is making big fuss these days while endeavoring to get a few good journalists in shape to be awarded the Sigma Delta Chi fraternity key for making a high standing in all work during the four years spent in this University.

If there is no humor in this brief sketch, blame it on the professor who will spring a "pop quiz" on Monday morning.

"Chesterfields Satisfy"

WHEN smokers keep buying the same cigarette day after day... it's a pretty good sign that they're getting what they want... mildness, better taste—a smoke that's always the same.

So we're going right on making Chesterfields just as we always have... selecting choice, ripe tobaccos... ageing them... blending and cross-blending them... making them into cigarettes in the most scientific ways that are known.

As long as we do these things we know that smokers will continue to say, "They Satisfy". For that's what people are saying about Chesterfields.

If you smoke, why not find out about them? A package or two will tell you the whole story.

Due to the excitement caused by the first Southeastern conference basketball tournament being held in Atlanta, my friend, the sports editor, is unable to write his customary bit, so here we are.

From Atlanta comes the news that the big boys of the conference do not favor holding the tournament in the Georgia city due to the high cost of providing a playing floor, small crowds and other reasons. Lexington was mentioned by all the coaches as the choice to land next year's tournament if the University of Kentucky proffers the conference bid.

The big problem about having a tournament in Lexington is the lack of adequate seating space in the Alumni gym. Such an event as the Southeastern tournament would draw a crowd that would fully pack the gymnasium. If Transylvania is successful in their campaign to finish their field house the tournament may be held there, but it is altogether unlikely that they will be able to complete the structure by that time. Still, the basketball building here on the campus is a much better playing floor than the Municipal auditorium in Atlanta.

Along with the successful march of the Cats toward the finals of the tournament comes the thought that if the Big Blue does conquer in the final tonight they will continue the precedent set by the Wildcats in 1921. They won the first tournament held by a new conference, the Southern, and this is the first tournament held by the new southern Big Thirteen.

The flashy play of the Cats in the current tourney impresses the Atlanta fans but they are cheering for the other team. They do not like favorites and yell for the dark horses.

Louisiana State has the fastest team in the tourney and also the cockiest player in "Sparky" Wade, flashy Tiger guard, who handles his opponents in true "cat" style. Mississippi State, the only dark horse left in the play, is the toughest squad there and the most daring. Their offense is the most unconventional seen in the austere Georgia metropolis and they shoot from all imaginable positions.

Some of The Kernel staff are still ignorant as to who won the tournament. Judy Chadwick, dirt-digging feature writer, piped up with "Who did win the tournament?" We're glad someone cares enough to ask.

Now that spring has definitely decided to come, Coach Bernie Shively's hard working Wildcat track men are working out every afternoon. When the weather permits, all the distance candidates are going their full distance. Captain Howard Baker, one of the best distance men to represent the University in years, is running in mid-season form now and should improve over his last year's form. All the men who were going out for the baseball team will be out as there is no baseball team this year. Coach Shively will have an abundant supply of material and should have a much better squad than he had last year. Last year with a nice team and several star performers the attendance at the meets held on Stoll field was rather slim and as admission was free there was absolutely no excuse for the lack of interest shown by students. Track takes much more conditioning and practice than any other intercollegiate sport and provides more individual competition than any other major sport. A big crowd inspires the athletes and often results in record performances, and the student body can at least turn out three Saturday afternoons to watch the most picturesque of sports, omitting thoroughbred horse racing.

We reprint from The Lexington Leader, of Sunday, February 26, the all-American team chosen by Frank Lane, prominent official. Ellis Johnson, star Kentucky guard, was the only Wildcat to make the team, but Lane placed Captain "Aggers" in the South, on the second "S" Sale, one of the highest scorers. French DeMoisey, Cat forward and center, exponent of the "twist shot," received honorable mention. Johnson has an amazing record of positions on all-star teams. He was all-state scholastic guard in 1928, when a member of the Ashland Tomcats, all-American in 1928 and 1929, and Captain both years, and was all-Southern guard last season.

Sale is all-Southern center and all-American forward by virtue of his selection by College Humor. The all-American basketball team as picked by Frank C. Lane, one of America's leading sports officials, follows:

First Team—Reiff, Northwestern, forward; Krause, Notre Dame, forward; Hosket, Ohio State, center; Smith, Pittsburgh, guard; Johnson, Kentucky, guard.

Second Team—Sale, Kentucky, forward; Colburn, Ohio State, forward; Johnson, Kansas, center; Nikkel, Yale, guard; Parmenter, Purdue, guard.

In explaining his selection of Johnson, Lane says, "Johnson is about the best defensive player I have ever seen. A strong durable player, good for forty minutes of the fastest action. Victory after victory for Kentucky could be recounted with, 'Johnson stopped 'em university union located on the University campus. A part of the program will include a tour of Duke University buildings and its campus. O. D. K., for those who may not be familiar with it, is a college honorary activities fraternity for men, founded in 1914 at Washington and Lee university. It has chapters in 33 American colleges and universities. The Kentucky chapter, Nu, was founded on this campus in 1925. It has for its president George Stewart who was elected to that office last year. Prof. R. D. McIntyre of the Commerce College is faculty advisor for the local chapter and is also chairman of the scholarship fund committee.

The purpose of O.D.K. is threefold. First, to recognize men who have attained a high standard of efficiency in collegiate activities, and to inspire others to strive for conspicuous attainments along similar lines.

Second, to bring together the most representative men in all phases of collegiate life and thus create an organization which will help to mould the sentiment of the institution on question of local and intercollegiate interest.

Third, to bring together members of the faculty and student body of the institution on a basis of mutual interest and understanding.

clays of the Jackson purchase. Most interesting finds of fossil vertebrates have been made in Kentucky, including those of Big Bone Lick, Bide Lick, and the glacial deposits of the northern tip of the state, but it is unfortunately true that most of these have found their way to outside institutions. Thus, while only a limited display of such material is available it is hoped that finds made in the future will be placed with the University, thus making them available to Kentuckians.

"It has been the purpose of the department of anthropology and archaeology to make the display in the museum tell a story of prehistoric human life in Kentucky. Part of the display is thus devoted to archaeological evidence. The evidence. The museum also contains the bird collections of the department of zoology and the study collections of the zoological skeleton material.

Among interesting specimens to be seen are numerous cases of implements, artifacts, and skulls of all kinds dating from the earliest prehistoric period. The communal crematory and the ossuary pit dating into the little known past prove to be of special interest. The communal crematory contains the charred and burned bones of hundreds of individuals of an unknown tribe, while the ossuary pit which is the community burial place contains the fragmentary bones of many tribesmen. The rarest of all these specimens would probably be considered the moccasins made from grasses and various kinds of skins.

Y.W.C.A. To Meet 7:30 P. M. Thursday

Discussion of "Student Life in Other Countries," will be the program at the meeting of the Y. W. C. A. to be held in Patterson hall at 7 p. m. Tuesday. This is the first of a series of programs concerning international relations and is preparation to the visit of Dr. Visser T. Hooft to the University on March 19.

Mr. Nedelkoff, president of the Cosmopolitan club, has consented to tell of student life in some of the European countries in which he has studied. Several other students are expected to speak on similar subjects.

Henry H. Gibbs Is Missing From Pennsylvania U.

Youth Sent Suicidal Notes to Parents; Disappeared January 6

Help! From the state of Pennsylvania comes the call of distress and The Kernel has eventually heard the cry.

Recently a letter was received from Mrs. Harriet Gibbs who is searching for her son, Henry Huntington Gibbs, lately having disappeared from the University of Pennsylvania after threatening suicide.

The following is an extract from the letter:

"Would the disappearance of this college boy interest your readers? If you have a niche in your paper where you could publish this notice you would aid us in the search for our son."

The notice sent by Mrs. Gibbs included the portrait of the 20-year-old student, who sent letters to his father saying that his dead body would never be found. According to the notice, he has not been seen since January 6, 1933. It is feared that he has suffered a lapse of memory from a nervous breakdown due to overstudy and financial worry.

Young Gibbs is six feet, three to four inches tall, and weighs from 135 to 145 pounds. He has light golden brown hair and grey blue eyes.

His left arm is slightly crooked from a break one inch above the elbow, suffered when he was seven years old. At the time of his disappearance, he probably wore a dark blue suit with a double-breasted coat, a dark overcoat, and either black or tan shoes.

Any information leading to the whereabouts of this person will be most gratefully received by the parents of the boy, whose address is 1821 Newton Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

College Grad (to father): "Say dad, how do you get around to propose to the girl friend?" Father: "Don't worry, son, the girl friend will get you around to it."

ATHLETIC STARS TO BE FETED THURSDAY

The University Alumni club of Lexington will give their annual banquet for the varsity and freshman basketball squads at 6:30 Thursday night, March 2, at the Lafayette hotel. The varsity basketball squad, Coach Rupp, and assistant Coach Len Miller will be the guests of honor, and the senior members of the team will be given special honor.

This will be the eleventh annual banquet given by the University of Kentucky Alumni club of Lexington in honor of the basketball squads. A large crowd is expected to attend this banquet to honor the team which made such an enviable record in the basketball world the past season.

Coach Adolph Rupp will be the principal speaker at the banquet. S. A. "Daddy" Boles will present the varsity members of the team with letters and the freshmen will receive numerals. Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, secretary of the Lexington Alumni club, will be toastmistress and will present the speakers.

The five senior members of the varsity squad to be honored are Captain "Aggie" Sale, Ellis Johnson, Darrel Darby, George Yates and George Skinner. The men constitute the greatest collection of material ever seen at the University at one time. Captain Sale was named All-American last year on the College Humor magazine team and was All-Southern last year.

Ellis Johnson was All-American scholastic guard for two years, All-Southern guard for two years, captain of 1931-32 Wildcat team, and has been picked as All-American guard on Frank Lane's team this year. He was the only southerner picked on this team. Darrel Darby was an All-American scholastic forward while he was a member of the Ashland High school national championship team. George Yates was All-Southern center in 1930-31. He was captain-elect of the 1931-32 Wildcats but was unable to play because of illness. The last senior, George Skinner, a great athlete, deserves as much praise as the other senior member of the team although he never received a letter for varsity basketball. He is a member of the varsity football team and after every football season he has helped make the regular team the efficient team that it is now.

Engineers To Hear Rep. J. G. Scrugham

He served in the World War and, 1917, he was commissioned a major in the U. S. army, cannon section of the production division stationed at Washington, D. C. In 1919 he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel and made a member of the Artillery board.

In 1923 he was elected governor of Nevada, and last November he was chosen to represent Nevada in the lower house of Congress. Since 1921 he has been editor of the Nevada State Journal at Reno.

In Nevada he has been prominently identified with education, industrial development, newspaper work, and archaeology, as well as government affairs of the state. The Hoover Dam owes, in a great measure, its existence to the indefatigable efforts of Congressman Scrugham.

In his archaeological work, Mr. Scrugham is no less important, having fostered excavations that have unearthed valuable discoveries that are now in leading museums all over the country.

An interesting sidelight on Mr. Scrugham's life is that he never cared for political work and left Kentucky, the seat of politics, to work in the new state of Nevada, only to receive the highest political honor that that commonwealth could bestow on any one of its members.

Mr. Scrugham is stopping here on his way to Washington to attend the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

College girls aren't as fickle as they used to be—one fellow got two consecutive dates with a co-ed.

Ah, Senior! Jim took Susie for a ride Along a country lane; He got his Spanish up To find it wasn't Spain.

ILLUSION:

The Oriental girl reclines on a sheet of plate glass supported by two slaves. The magician waves a white sheet in front of the pretty maiden...pronounces a few magic words... Presto! She has disappeared in thin air.

EXPLANATION:

"Disappearing" acts are among the most popular in the repertoire of the magician. Dogs, horses, girls, whole rooms disappear—whisked into wings, dropped through trapdoors, hidden by mirrors. But this "disappearance" is a bit different. One of the "slaves" is a hollow dummy. When the magician holds up the sheet the little lady disappears completely—into the convenient figure of the dummy.

It's FUN TO BE FOOLED ...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

There is also a trick of cigarette advertising, whereby a few magic words are used to create the illusion of "Coolness."

EXPLANATION: Coolness is determined by the speed of burning. Fresh cigarettes, retaining their full moisture, burn more slowly... smoke cooler. Parched, dry cigarettes burn fast. They taste hot. This makes the method of wrapping very important.

Improperly wrapped cigarettes begin to dry out as soon as packed.

Camels are cooler because they come in the famous Humidor Pack of welded, three-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane... and because they contain better tobaccos.

A cigarette that is fresh, full of natural moisture, and blended from choice, ripe tobaccos tastes cooler than one that is harsh and arid. For coolness, choose a fresh cigarette, made from costlier tobaccos.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Try Camels... give your taste a chance to sense the difference. You'll appreciate it!
